E. Scott testified that she had had a conspiracy of the "asylim trust," as they call it, and say that the change of policy proposed for the institute is criminal.

The fight has been carried into the Legislature, although with some caution.

Each side has sought legal advice on the question, and it was learned yesterday that several investigations had been carried on quietly. Meanwhile, by reason of legislative action which prevents the director of the institute from spending any part of the arminal appropriation for rent, the institute has been forced to move out of its large quarters in the Mertopolitan Life Buldings to pack up its belongings, including some 25,000 specimens which are said to form about as good a collection as exists anywhere in the world, and to take them all over to Ward's Island for storage in a basement until new quarters are secured.

The Club Is Contemplating Replacing Colored Servants With White Men.

A special meeting of the Union League (Importer "It was said yesterday that the decision of the appraisers would be undoubtedly appealed from and the case carried to the Union the club, namely, whether or not it should substitute white help for its colored servants. The importance which this question has assumed in the club is shown in the fact that a meeting of he entire club has been called to discuss whereas most questions involving the ervice at a club are settled by the House Committee.

The club had its inception when the negro was a burning issue in the days before the war. Its founders were nearly all abolitionists and that was one reason why negroes were employed. Some of the colored waiters were employed. Some of the colored waiters at the club have been there for twenty years. For some time, however, the younger element to the colored waiters at the club have been there for twenty years. For some time, however, the younger element have felt that white servants would be better than colored ones, and recently the House committee, which is composed to the finest collections of specimens in the world and we have a fine library. Some of the very best men we have here are working for almost nothing. We have had only about thirty students here from the State hospitals. That was not our fault.

This institute was founded as much for research as anything, and men who wish to do research here have to have a good training for it. New they want to make a cort of school out of this institute. We are agreed that Dr. Van Gleson is right in the position he has taken and we shall resign if he is forced out.

There is a misapprehension as to the effect of these decisions by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court. They do not by any means dispose of the creditors claims, nor does the Countess de Castellane get back the control of her trust income. These are merely decisions in a preliminary stage of the case. The action has not yet been tried. All that the court has thus far decided is that Mr. Werthelmer cannot the up the trust income until he has obtained a judgment against them here after personal service of the papers on them.

The litigatic a is not ended, it has just begun. The Countess is still under injunction by Judge Lacombe's order in the Federal Court suit from receiving more than $200,000 at the creditors. The only question to be given the creditors. The only question to be to the creditors. The only question to be liftingated now is as to whether werthemer will share with the other creditors or will have priority over them.
